

How do the waitlist work?

Dean, Student Affairs Enrollment Services

Fall 2024

How does the waitlist work?

- During open registration, once a course reaches capacity, students have the option to add themselves to the waitlist.
- These waitlists are processed daily up until the Friday before the term begins.
- Once the main term starts (Fall, Spring, or Summer), A&R manually runs waitlists for late-start courses up until the Friday before the specific course begins.
- When a seat becomes available in a full class due to a student dropping it, a new student is automatically registered from the waitlist during the overnight processing.
- If a student added themselves to the waitlist the Saturday/Sunday before the class begins they would not be added, since we stopped running the waitlist the previous Friday.
- To be enrolled, the student would need to either attend the first day of class or email the faculty member to request add authorization.

How are students notified?

Once a student is added from the waitlist, they are sent an email informing them they are added to the course and to pay for the course.

How many students enrolled from waitlist?

4,722 students were enrolled from the waitlist for Fall 2024
